FACTS

8. Defendants own, operate, control, and/or otherwise maintain a residential summer camp doing business as Camp Kahdalea, which is located at 2500 Morgan Mill Road, Brevard, North Carolina 28712.
9. Defendants promote this camp as a place where young women are part of a camp family where they are carefully taught new disciplines and skills to enhance self-esteem.
10. Defendants' camp includes week-long programs for high school students.
11. Plaintiff Tiffany Aguilera attended the Defendants' summer camp during August of 2014.

12. Upon information and belief, Defendants failed to implement sufficient policies and procedures to promote the safety of campers like the Plaintiff consistent with the standards of the camping industry. In addition and/or in the alternative, Defendants failed to sufficiently train their employees and staff in the Defendants' own policies and procedures as were otherwise consistent with the standards of the camping industry.
13. On or about August 14, 2014, Defendants by and through their agents and/or employees, planned, organized, and/or supervised an event where campers would jump from a cliff, thirty-five (35) feet high, into a body of water below.
14. Defendants knew or should have known of the risks of jumping into a natural body of water, including the presence of hard objects like rocks, logs, or the river's bottom.
15. Jumping off of a cliff was promoted and encouraged by Defendants' camp staff.
16. Defendants failed to adequately train, supervise, and/or protect campers participating in this event.
17. Defendants knew or should have known that cliff jumping from a height of thirty-five (35) feet was likely to cause serious injury such as concussions, fractures, broken bones, injured discs, spinal cord damage, paralysis, and even death.
18. As instructed by three (3) camp counselors participating in the event, Plaintiff Tiffany Aguilera jumped off of the thirty-five (35) foot high cliff into the body of water. When she landed in the water, her buttocks struck a rock which was just below the water's surface. She immediately lost feeling and movement in her legs, and experienced excruciating pain in her lower back. She required assistance getting out of the water.

19. Defendants and their staff provided substandard and dangerous medical assistance following Plaintiff's injury. Defendants' staff carried Plaintiff "piggy back" style back to the camp's main facility. She was not immobilized at the location of the accident, as should have been the case. Although she was briefly examined at the camp, no x-rays were taken and no emergency medical treatment was provided. Instead, Plaintiff was released from camp the next day and rode over fourteen hours in a car to return home. Plaintiff's parents immediately took her to the emergency department at Midstate Medical Center. She was subsequently transferred to Hartford Hospital where it was determined she suffered a trauma to her lower spine. She was hospitalized for three days and subsequently underwent surgery.
20. Plaintiff Tiffany Aguilera suffered serious and permanent personal injuries. She was hospitalized, underwent surgery, and has endured a long and difficult recovery. She has incurred substantial medical expenses, endured pain and suffering, and emotional distress. Therefore, Plaintiff has suffered damages in excess of $10,000.00.
21. Plaintiff Dianett Kardoch incurred medical expenses related to the care and treatment of her daughter, Tiffany Aguilera. Plaintiff Dianett Kardoch further endured emotional distress over her daughter's injuries. Therefore, Plaintiff Dianett Kardoch has suffered damages in excess of $10,000.00.
22. At all times alleged in this Complaint, the agents and or employees of the Defendants were acting within the course and scope of their employment so that their actions, inactions, deeds, misdeeds, and negligence is and should be imputed to the named Defendants under the law of agency and the doctrine of respondeat superior. Additionally and/or alternatively, Defendants had the duty to control, supervise, monitor, and be responsible for other individuals, providers, and/or borrowed servants acting under the control and supervision of its employees and/or agents. Therefore, the actions, inactions, deeds, misdeeds, and negligence of these borrowed servants is and should be imputed to the named Defendants under the law of agency and the doctrines of respondeat superior, ratification and/or condonation.

23. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and thus re-allege each of the prior allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 22.

24. At all times alleged in this Complaint, the Defendants individually and through their agents and employees, owed Plaintiff Tiffany Aguilera a duty of care to act reasonably under the circumstances and as otherwise provided by law. Defendants breached this duty, and thus acted negligently by:

- e. Failing to detect the hazardous condition created by the rock that was beneath the water's surface;

- i. Failing to adhere to the standards of care applicable to summer camps in the same or similar communities with the same or similar equipment, facilities, and staff;
- j. Failing to provide Plaintiff with sufficient medical treatment following her injury;
- k. Delaying the medical treatment that was necessary to treat Plaintiff's injury;
- l. Failing to adequately train its employees to supervise, monitor, or oversee events involving campers like Plaintiff when Defendants knew or should have known that such substandard training needlessly increased the risk of harm to campers;
- m. Failing to exercise ordinary care in the oversight and supervision of its employees, staff, and agents; or
- n. Acting in other negligent ways not expressed in this Complaint, but that may be demonstrated at trial.

25. It was reasonably foreseeable that the Defendants' negligence as described herein would cause Plaintiff harm, and Defendants' negligence did, in fact, cause Plaintiff harm.

- b. Failing to have in effect one or more proper standards, rules, regulations, policies, procedures, protocols, or manual provisions for the health, wellbeing, and/or protection of campers when the Defendant knew or should have known that the failure to have such policies needlessly increased the risk of harm to campers like Tiffany Aguilera;

- c. Failing to properly supervise, monitor, or oversee camp events, including the event injuring Plaintiff;
- d. Failing to hire sufficient staff to supervise, monitor, or oversee the care of campers when the Defendant knew or should have known that the failure to have such oversight needlessly increased the risk of harm to campers such as Tiffany Aguilera;
- e. Failing to adequately train staff to supervise, monitor, or oversee the care of campers when the Defendant knew or should have known that such substandard training needlessly increased the risk of harm to patients; or
- f. Acting in such other negligent ways as may be demonstrated through discovery or a trial on this matter.

30. It was reasonably foreseeable that the Defendant's corporate negligence as described herein would cause Plaintiff harm, and Defendant's corporate negligence did, in fact, cause Plaintiff harm.

31. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's corporate negligence, Plaintiff Tiffany suffered serious and permanent personal injuries. She was hospitalized, underwent surgery, and has endured a long and difficult recovery. She has incurred substantial medical expenses, endured pain and suffering, and emotional distress.
